Published on Kitchen Gardeners International (http://kgi.org)

Can We Finally End the War on Front Yard Gardens?

Wed, 07/18/2012 - 16:56 -- Roger Doiron

---UPDATE July 23rd 10pm Eastern----

Here's a breaking update on Canada's most famous front yard garden. Multiple media sources are reporting that Josée and Michel have been given a stay until September 1st which will allow them to harvest most of their produce and allow town officials to review the case in greater detail. So we've won the immediate battle and have until September 1st to win the war. Thanks to all who signed our petition and/or sent emails to Drummondville officials. We'll be keeping our petition open until September 1st to build more support. More info as we have it. -Roger

---UPDATE July 23rd 10pm Eastern----

ORIGINAL POST:

Do you remember that gorgeous front yard garden I shared a couple weeks ago? Well, the gardeners are being ordered to remove most of it by town bureaucrats. We've created a bilingual petition here [1] to show global solidarity and deliver the message that front yard vegetable gardens are here to stay. Please sign, like and share the link.

For those not using facebook, you can send a respectful email in French [2] (double-checked for accuracy and politeness by my French-speaking wife) to the council members who are deciding the fate of Josée's and Michel's garden.

Image (optional):

[illegible] drummondville.qc.ca,j