Answer::

Question Details (optional):

I am thinking of planting my fall garlic into the front yard \"edible landscape\" which is frequently browsed by deer in our neighborhood. Those plants that are tempting are either sprayed with a rosemary/mint preventative or covered with netting. In order to free up some space in my veg garden and demonstrate more edibles up front I wanted to try planting the garlic out there but wonder if the deer are likely to eat it up? Or would the strong taste deter them?
