

Published on Kitchen Gardeners International (<http://kgi.org>)

Home > SunnyBlooms question

SunnyBlooms question

Fri, 06/15/2012 - 21:59 -- SunnyBlooms

Question:

What is this fruit?

Group content visibility:

Use group defaults

Question Details (optional):

Tonight, while picking mustang grapes I spotted something growing along a fenceline that I can't identify. It looks like a smooth-skinned lime but it is soft. When opened, it is mostly hollow inside with a white spongy lining and alot of seeds down the middle. I don't think it's edible as I took a small taste and it tasted like slightly sweet styrofoam. I live in East Texas and have never seen this before. I'll try to post a picture tomorrow if no one has any ideas. A Google search didn't reveal anything that looks like this..

Source URL: <http://kgi.org/questions/what-fruit>